The story of Fatal Frame 4 starts off with a little intro that shows an earthquake, a girl named Miku Hinasaki, and her younger sister Reiko. The two sisters are going to investigate an abandoned hotel after their father had an accident, which led to their family being separated from one another. The two sisters go to the hotel to look for their brother Satoshi. Upon entering the hotel, the girls enter a room where they find a woman in a wedding dress and what appears to be an engagement ring. While investigating, Miku is dragged into the mirror by an unknown force. Reiko tries to save her, but fails. She awakens in another room, where she finds a photo of herself and Satoshi on top of a bedside table. She then begins to hear Miku's voice calling out for her, and then she hears Miku's body drop from above her. In the next chapter of the story, Reiko encounters both of her parents in front of an elevator door which is out of order. They tell her that it has been 5 days since Miku disappeared. Reiko's mother then expresses her grief that the search has proven to be futile. They then ask Reiko to give up on searching for them, and just return home. Reiko refuses. Once again the voices of Miku calling out to Reiko can be heard, but this time coming from behind the door she's standing in front of. After walking through the door she finds herself back in room 117. She finds a journal on top of an antique writing desk, which she reads through before unlocking a drawer with a key located inside the journal. She discovered a mysterious blue and white key. There is also a camera and film for it in the drawer as well, along with a piece of paper that says "Reiko". After taking the film and key, she proceeds to enter another room. Inside she finds a metal box that says "The Redemption of Makoto" on it. Upon opening the box, Reiko finds an old photograph of her mother, her father's wedding ring, Reiko's baby shoes from six years ago, as well as a red envelope containing 118 yen. After finding those items she leaves the room and enters another one where there is a ghostly figure standing behind a wall just staring at her.
